Brown Trucking Honors Safe Drivers,
Inducts 22 into “Million Mile Safe Driving” Driver Safety Hall of Fame
Drivers lauded for completing a million accident-free miles

ATLANTA, September 5, 2011 – Brown Trucking Company, a Southeastern dedicated and regional truckload carrier, announced the induction of 22 exceptional drivers into its “Million Mile Safe Driving” Driver Safety Hall of Fame. The group was recognized for successfully driving over a million consecutive miles accident-free, all with Brown Trucking and/or Brown’s acquired companies West Brothers Transportation Services and Schrader Trucking Company.

Although Brown Trucking drivers handle a high number of shipments (averaging 8.4/week), they generally accumulate a much lower weekly mileage total than a typical truckload carrier working the same number of hours. Brown Trucking trucks usually travel relatively short distances, with an average length of haul less than 150 miles, and the majority of the miles taking place within or between major metropolitan areas.

It takes an individual driver on average between 12 and 15 years to reach the milestone, as a million miles is a distance roughly equivalent to about 40 trips around the world. Collectively, the honorees have tallied about 300 years driving more than 80,000 miles each year accident-free.

“The importance of safety cannot be understated. Here at Brown Trucking, we want every driver to arrive safely, every time,” said Brian Kinsey, president and CEO of Brown Integrated Logistics, the parent company of Brown Trucking. “We’re proud to say that this group represents accidents that didn’t happen. Less than one percent of professional drivers out there on the road today will ever achieve such an accomplishment, so we commend our drivers for their excellence and commitment to safe driving.”

A commercial heavy truck driver operates a vehicle that is four times longer than an automobile, is 20-25 times heavier, accelerates much more slowly, takes several times as long to stop, and has very limited visibility, much of which is achieved with mirrors. Commercial truck drivers are held to a very high safety standard despite these limitations. All Brown Trucking drivers undergo a comprehensive safety program, and training on safe driving methods continues throughout their tenure.

Brown Trucking continues to keep safety first by maintaining outstanding accident frequency rates, experiencing very few on-the-job injuries, and earning the highest possible safety rating ("Satisfactory") from the U.S. Department of Transportation (USDOT) and Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) every year since the rating was established. Brown Trucking also was named First Place in the Georgia Motor Trucking Association Safety Contest for the Truckload Division 10-20 Million Miles category, an honor the company has been awarded for the last three years.
